INFORMATION FOR CONTRIBUTORS

Geography welcomes articles for submission on any aspect of geography or of geographical education. Articles on the problems of teaching geography in the context of changing educational needs are most welcome.

Whilst the range of topics covered by Geography is wide, intending authors should bear in mind that the majority of the journal's readers are practising teachers and students. Geography does not publish highly technical or esoteric research papers. The results of research may be included, but only if their wider relevance is brought out. A high premium is placed on readability. At the same time, Geography is an academic journal and high scholarly standards will be maintained.

Manuscripts. To facilitate refereeing two copies of papers must be submitted, typed on A4 paper, double-spaced with wide margins. Notes and references should also be double-spaced. For main articles a length of 2500-5000 words is desirable, for 'Geo Notes' no more than 2000 and for 'This Changing World' no more than 1200. Main articles should contain a short abstract. Tables, numbered and titled, should be typed on separate sheets, statistical information in metric units.

Notes and references. The Harvard system is used for references. In the text the author's name and date of publication should be given, e.g. "Gregory (1978) states that . . ." or "it has been postulated (Gregory, 1978) that . . .". References should be listed in alphabetical order at the end of the article in the following manner:

Granö, O. (1981) "External influences and internal changes in the development of geography", in Stoddart, D. R. (ed.) Geography, Ideology and Social Concern, Oxford: Basil Blackwell, pp. 17-36.
Gregory, S. (1978) "The role of physical geography in the curriculum", Geography, 63, pp. 251-264.

Note that the titles of journals should be given in full, e.g. Transactions of the Institute of British Geographers. References must be restricted to those which are really necessary or particularly helpful.

A limited number of informational notes may be included where they are unavoidably necessary to explain a technical term or some other point of information. Such notes should be indicated by superscript numbers in the text. Papers for 'This Changing World' should contain no notes or references.

Maps, diagrams and photographs. Line drawings (maps, graphs, diagrams etc.) should be 50 per cent larger than the desired printed size. Finished drawings should be of suitable quality for reproduction without further preparation. In case of difficulty, consult the editor. All illustrations should be numbered sequentially and provided with captions, separately typed. Titles should not be drawn in the maps or diagrams. Authors are encouraged to submit photographs, which should be in the form of large black and white glossy prints.

Offprints: 25 are supplied free.

Send all articles, including papers for 'Geo Notes' and for 'This Changing World', to Dr. Russell King, Hon. Editor, Geography, Department of Geography, University of Leicester, Leicester LE1 7RH.
